'The Master and Margarita as Bulgakov's commentary on

November 20th, 2019 - For Andrew Barratt the novel's Soviet nature lies in Bulgakov's use of satire a genre fixed in the realities of post-revolutionary Russia and in Bulgakov's reference to the New Testament which has a special place in the religious debate of the 1920s. T. Kisel suggests that the novel is meant to guide the ignorant Soviet reader through a wider historical and cultural'
